

Breaktime

Building communities (St Eds & Ips)

Mothers' Union, working with a local Residents' Association, open up a parish hall during the lunchtime break, and provide teenagers with something free to eat and drink, activities to do and a safe place to socialise.

Most days between 40 – 50 young people come along.

Volunteers help in a range of ways: some by serving the food and drinks, and others who are more 'front of house' engage more directly with the young people.

"This project has led the parish into a newly enriched relationship with the community and its young people"

For general guidelines about setting up and developing outreach initiatives, go to the members' section of the Mothers' Union website www.themothersunion.org